

Shalom Farms values the life and experiences of everyone who volunteers, visits, or works at our farms. Everyone has inherent worth, is constantly learning and growing, and has something to offer. We uphold this value by having zero tolerance for violence of any kind and expecting everyone to respect each other's ideas and personal boundaries.

We acknowledge the history that led us here as well as the systemic issues that still exist, and we take seriously the responsibility to do things better now. We invite you to participate and aim to create a safe environment in which to do so.
